ALABAMA POWER COMPANY BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

To the Customers of Alabama Power Company:

In the course of the development of this company's interconnected transmission system, now serving more than 96,000 customers located in 483 cities, villages and communities in 65 of the 67 counties of the State, much difficulty was encountered in raising capital to carry on the

Of the total of $133,000,000 of bonds and preferred stocks outstanding today, Alabamians hold $20,000,000 of preferred stock and some unknown portion of the bonds. A very large percentage of both securities are held by Trust and Insurance Companies, savings banks, religious, educational and charitable institutions.

As of April 1, 1933, there were twenty-three insurance companies doing business within the State and owning more than $27,000,000 of the bonds and preferred stocks of Alabama Power Company. Insurance companies generally have invested their funds in public utility securities. It is said that seven-eighths of all the money

ilies, is derived from life insurance. Life Insurance Companies had in force in Alabama on December 31, 1932, more than $630,000,000 of insurance out of which was paid over $11,000,000 for death claims. Fire Insurance Companies had in force over $540,000,000 of insurance and paid to Alabamians during the same year losses exceeding Public utility bonds and stocks form a substantial part of the assets of insurance companies. Breaking down the market value and soundness of utility securities threatens the financial stability of many insurance companies upon whom thousands of Alabamians depend for protection in case of death or fire loss. While there are some 12,000 Alabamians having a direct financial interest in this company, there are many times that number of our citizens who are indirectly interested financially in Ann was off the ranch and on the main road. But Ruth felt certain that Ann would do exactly as Snavely had ordered. . . The voice, then, was not his only hold on Ann; there was a bigger thing.

In a short time the packing was finished and the buckboard loaded. Ruth looked about for David; he was not in sight, nor did he answer her call. She suddenly realized that she had not seen him since returning from the mail box. Ordinarily, she would have been only mildly disturbed—the snakes were gone this time of year.

Then Ruth's heart stopped: a few feet from the board fence
